Fibo

User's Guide

Fibo is a little bookmark-tool that enables you to have access to your favorite websites, files, folders, music and videos, vCards, and e-mails from one place.

How to add Bookmarks

You can add a bookmark by clicking on the small star-icon at the top-right in your Mac OS menu bar and selecting the "Add Bookmark" entry.

Depending on the program that is active and in front, Fibo will add a bookmark to a website (from Safari or Google Chrome), an email (from Mac OS Mail), a vCard (from the Address Book), a song or a video (from iTunes) or files & folders (from the Finder).
You can see which program is active at the top left of the Mac OS menu bar.

In order to add vCards, files & folders or emails you have to select the items in your program and click on the "Add Bookmark" entry. You can add multiple vCards, mails or files & folders at once.
To add a song or video, click the "Add Bookmark" entry when iTunes is the active program. Fibo will add the current song or video that is playing.
To add a website just click the "Add Bookmark" entry when Safari or Google Chrome is active and the website you are currently viewing will be added to the bookmark list.

To make it even easier for you, you can define a keyboard-shortcut in the Fibo Preferences for adding bookmarks to the list. By pressing the shortcut, Fibo will add bookmarks depending on the program you are currently working in. You can use growl-notifications to notify you about the bookmark that was added to Fibo after pressing the shortcut.

Selecting Bookmarks

By clicking on the small star-icon at the top-right in your Mac OS menu bar you get a list of all your bookmarks you have added so far. In the Fibo Preferences you can sort this list by date, name or popularity (this option sorts the items depending on how often you clicked on them).

When you select a file with the command-key pressed the parent folder of this file will be opened instead of the file itself. If you want to delete a bookmark-item from the list after launching it you can do that by pressing the option-key and selecting the item. This option can be turned on constantly in the Fibo Preferences or by selecting the menu-item "remove bookmark after launch".

Editing the Bookmark-List

In the Fibo Preferences you can delete and edit your bookmarks. By double-clicking on the title or the count-value of a bookmark you can change the title or the count-value of this bookmark-item.
Fibo will check if a bookmark to a file or folder sill exists every time the list gets reloaded. By activating the option "remove missing files automatically" Fibo will remove entries pointing to a file or folder that doesn't exist anymore.
To quickly remove a bookmark, press the control-key and click on the specific entry.
